

Pregnancy Baby Toddler Big Kid Food & Party Healthy Living Love & Sex

In The News Entertainment Beauty & Style Home & Garden Bloggers Columns

What's Brewing: Burn a Koran Better School Lunches Carpool Fashion Ideas Fall Movie Guide Kids Calling 911

Welcome to The Stir. It's easy to keep in touch with us: X

"Like" us on Facebook Receive our Hottest Stories Daily

The Stir on Facebook

Like 4,450

Subscribe to our Daily Newsletter

Previous Big Kid Next

Girls Finally Smarter Than Boys | Ask Dad: Can I Let My Kid Wander Off Alone?

Follow Us

Get The Stir's daily newsletter delivered to you.

Big Kid

Back to School Guide - Middle & High School

Latchkey: 3 Signs Your Kid Is Ready

Posted by Jeanne Sager on September 3, 2010 at 3:45 PM

Comments \(6\) | Likes \(69\)

The first time my parents left me home alone, they were gone for a few minutes.

It felt like hours.

It turns out your kid who is chomping at the bit to be left home alone isn't always ready for it.

So how do you know when it's safe to let them loose as a latchkey kid?

1. Check With the Cops. Local laws vary, but some cities and towns have a minimum age. Don't even consider latchkey until you learn the law (remember, ignorance is no defense).

2. Gauge How Comfortable They Are. It doesn't matter if you're ready -- they have to be ready.

"If your kid doesn't seem ready at 14, don't do it. And don't start any younger than 11," says Dr. Charlotte Reznick, an associate professor of psychology at UCLA and author of The Power of Your Child's Imagination: How to Transform Stress and Anxiety Into Joy and Success. "A lot of kids are uncomfortable being alone," she says. "That desire for independence really doesn't come until the teenage years."

3. Watch Them in Tough Situations. A child who can't handle minor emergencies when you're home will never be able to grab a fire extinguisher when the toast lights. Waiting until kids are older can make a difference there.

"At 12 more of those brain cells kick in that help your kids make good decisions," Reznick advises.

Are you doing latchkey with your kids this school year?

Image via Bohman/Flickr

Filed Under: independence, back to school

Comments \(6\) | Likes \(69\)

|
 |
 |

Advertisement

Piping Hot Posts

1. Matt Roloff Heart Attack Rumors - We've Found Him Alive and Well!
2. 9 Lifesaving Car Seat Rules You're Probably Ignoring
3. 5 Breastfeeding Myths You Probably Believe Are True
4. Confessions of a Labor & Delivery Nurse
5. Matt & Amy Roloff Divorce Rumors

The Buzz in Comments

- Great article!! Yes, it's hard to remove foods. But c'mon people, it's not THAT big of a deal...
- I can't live without my shine spray for my hair! I think it is something that gives my hair that...
- fun fun fun
- I'm going to school to become an L&D nurse and even I think this is ridiculous! As a mom of ...
- I'm not a huge fan of fur in general, though I